It was suggested $500 be budgeted for donation to the Library for the year 2017 but that a Memorandum of Understanding be written this year. Sally Ainsworth is retiring and we shouldn't let the ball drop on this project. It was suggested that we have a raffle or do something to raise money for the library at our Fashion Show.

New Business:

Ranch Sorting – Date is October 8, fairgrounds, outside arena. It was announced that CattleWomen will serve a tri-tip dinner, beans, and salads for $10 during the Sorting event. CattleWomen do not have to prepare the meat but are asked to bring salads. Charlene Priest is in charge of raffle items and items or cash donations are welcome.

Beef Ambassador Program – Kari Dodd reported they are meeting weekly, working on a booth for the fair. They have had a Team Building Workshop presented by Sarah DeForest of Chico State. Kari stated that she is recommending we return to having 1 Jr. Beef Ambassador and 1 Sr. Beef Ambassador instead of a team with term limits. Joyce Bundy made a motion that we support Kari Dodd's recommendation to have 1 Sr. and 1 Jr. Beef Ambassador, Cathy Tobin seconded the motion. A call for discussion resulted in Joyce Bundy tabling her motion for further discussion prior to the November 1 meeting.

Honorary Membership – Joyce Bundy recommended that CattleWomen recognize Jackie Baker with an honorary membership or life-time membership because of her guidance and support to the organization. Shirley Davis, membership chair, stated she knew of no reason we could not do this. Tehama County man named Livestock Man of the Year

The California State Chamber of Commerce and the Grand National Rodeo and Stock Show have announced the selection of Jerry Hemsted as the 2016 “Livestock Man of the Year.” Hemsted is scheduled to accept the prestigious award at the Cow Palace, in San Francisco, on October 15.

The prestigious award started in 1950. Several men from Tehama County have received the honor over the years including Charles Stover, 1959; Roy Carmichael, 1968; Jack Owens, 1982; Ellington Peek, 1993; William Borrer, 2009; Bob deBraga, 2012.

Hemsted says he was born into the cattle industry. He demonstrated his first love of the industry with the purchase of a heifer named “Domino Princess the 44th” at the age of ten in Millville California. He partnered with his dad and ran his own cattle from the moment he was “infected,” as he says, with the industry. He was raised in Shasta and Tehama Counties graduating from Red Bluff high school in 1960.

After high school he studied at CSU, Fresno until his father Jim had a heart attack, which prompted Jerry to return to Tehama County to help manage Hemsted Livestock Transportation. His experience with hauling cattle proved valuable as both a cattlemen and California Cattlemen’s Association (CCA) President. Jerry hung up trucking in 1980, running cattle from then on.

In 2002 Jerry went to work for Bengard Ranches managing their extensive cattle operation which encompasses over 15 different ranches. This partnership proved a perfect combination of progressive management styles. Thanks in large part to his efforts, Bengard Ranches and Jerry were awarded with the CBCIA commercial producer of the year award in 2007.

For over 54 years, Jerry has devoted his services to cattlemen at the local, state, and national level. He was president and secretary of the Tehama County Cattlemen’s Association (TCCA), TCCA man of the year in 1988, and a state director. At the state level he has served as chair of the California Cattlemen’s Association’s POSSEE, membership, and animal health committees. This was followed by his time as CCA vice president and president from 1999 - 2000. One of his many accomplishments was helping form the California Rangeland Trust and his appointment to the first board of directors. In addition he was a board of director for the National Cattlemen’s Association, chair of the transportation committee, and dues paying membership chair for the National Cattlemen’s Beef Association.

Most importantly, Jerry married the love of his life Joan in 1965. They have three children and Jerry is most proud of being awarded Tehama County CattleWomen’s Father of the Year in 1993. Joan has also been a very active member of the CattleWomen’s Association serving as state president and a national director. In 2013, she was awarded the American National CattleWomen of the year, and recently the Common Threads award.
